Toy Box

I make toy boxes from the large-size shortening cans used by bakeries, restaurants and fish-and-chip stores. Usually these establishments are glad to give away empty cans. I begin by thoroughly washing the can inside and out to remove all grease. Enamel outside with white or pastel paint. Over this, place large decals or paint suitable nursery designs or child's name with poster paint. When this is thoroughly dry, the entire outer surface is shellacked. The lid is also enameled, decorated and shellacked in same manner. Bottom of can is lined with a circle of heavy corrugated cardboard to soundproof the toy container when toys are tossed in as they are sure to be. These sell for $2.00 to $2.50 depending on cost of decorations.

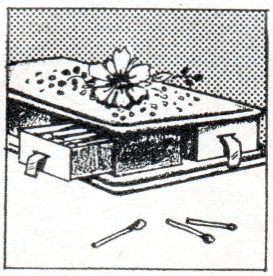
Floral Centerpiece

I make lovely floral centerpieces out of 46-ounce empty juice cans. Make a hole the size of a nickel in center of can. Smaller holes half the size of a dime are made on either side of the larger one. Flatten bottom with a hammer and spread 1 cup plaster of paris on can. Design plaster of paris to resemble a tree log. When dry, paint with brown water paints. Place a candle in center hole and flowers in two smaller holes. This attractive centerpiece is inexpensive to make and sells for $3 to $4.

Dianna Miller



Match Box Holder

I use wall tile to make attractive match box holders. Using four-inch tile, glue four small match boxes to wrong side of tile, having opening of each box facing each side of tile. Glue another tile for top. Decorate top with sequins, gummed stars, fancy jewelry or artifical flowers. Small tabs of ribbon or colored pipe cleaners can be used for drawer pulls on boxes. Smaller sizes can be made using half tile and two match boxes. These make very attractive gifts and sell for $1.50 to $2.50 according to size and decoration used.

Look what you can do with PEACHES!

The peach is one of the most popular fruits and is plentiful in nearly all parts of the country. Peaches can be preserved and served to please almost anybody! There is nothing better than fresh peaches and cream. However, the variety of ways in which they can be served helps to make meals more interesting.

Here are several recipes in which peaches are used in a great many ways.

Peach Muffins

1 tablespoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup well-drained, canned peaches, chopped
1 egg, beaten
1 cup milk
3 tablespoons melted shortening or oil

Sift together flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. Stir chopped peaches in with dry ingredients, coating fruit well with flour. Combine egg, milk and shortening or oil. Add liquid to flour mixture, stirring only until flour is moistened. Fill greased muffin pans ⅔ full. Bake in hot oven (425°F.) 20 to 25 minutes or until lightly browned. Makes 1 dozen medium muffins. *If self-rising flour is used, omit baking powder and salt.

"Golden Glory" Upside-down Cake

¼ cup butter or margarine
1 cup brown sugar
1 number 2½-can cling peaches, drained maraschino cherries, drained almonds, blanched and roasted cake mix

Line an electric skillet with foil paper letting it extend over side one inch. Turn heat control to low, add butter and brown sugar. Spread mixture evenly over foil-lined bottom. Place cling peaches, cherries and almonds on mixture in an attractive pattern. Prepare cake mix according to directions on package or use your favorite cake recipe. Set temperature control on skillet at 325°F. to 350°F. Pour batter into skillet slowly and evenly, so pattern is not upset and batter is equally distributed. Cover, open vent and bake 35 to 40 minutes. When cake is done, invert onto platter or foil-covered piece of cardboard. Lift off foil. Serve warm with plain or whipped cream.

Peach Marmalade

Peach Marmalade

4½ cups prepared fruit (1 orange, 1 lemon, and about 2 pounds ripe peaches)
5½ cups sugar
1 box (1¾ ounces) powdered fruit pectin

First, prepare the fruit. Cut 1 orange and 1 lemon in quarters. Remove seeds. Grind, chop fine, or slice crosswise wafer thin. Add 1 cup water and simmer, covered, 20 minutes. Peel and pit about 2 pounds fully ripe peaches. Chop very fine or grind. Combine fruits and measure 4½ cups into a very large saucepan.

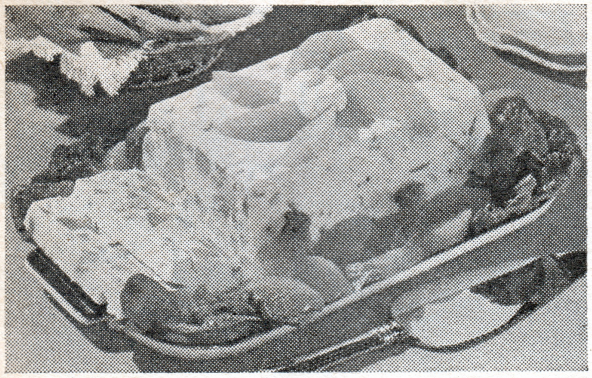
Then make the marmalade. Measure sugar and set aside. Add powdered fruit pectin to fruit in saucepan and mix well. Place over high heat and stir until mixture comes to a hard boil. Cook gently 1 minute. At once stir in sugar. Bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and skim off foam with metal spoon. Then stir and skim by turns for 5 minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into glasses. Cover at once with ⅛-inch hot paraffin. Yields about 10 medium (8 ounce) glasses.

Peach Shortcake Waffles

2 cups sifted enriched flour*
1 tablespoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
3 eggs, separated
1½ cups milk
⅓ cup melted shortening
2 cups sliced peaches, fresh or canned
1 cup whipping cream

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Beat egg yolks and add milk. Add to flour mixture. Add melted shortening. Mix well. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake on hot waffle baker. Whip cream until stiff. For each serving, place peach slices and whipped cream between two waffles. Top with additional whipped cream and peach slices.

*If self-rising flour is used, omit baking powder and salt.



Peach Cottage Cheese Loaf

Peach Cottage Cheese Loaf

- 1 can (1 pound 14 ounces) peaches
- 2 envelopes (2 tablespoons) unflavored gelatine
- 1 pint creamed cottage cheese (2 cups)
- ¾ cup salad dressing or mayonnaise
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- ½ pint (1 cup) dairy sour cream
- 1 cup chopped walnuts
- 1 cup finely chopped celery

Drain syrup from peaches. Dice peaches. Soften gelatine in peach syrup, about 5 minutes; dissolve over hot water. Beat cottage cheese, salad dressing or mayonnaise and sugar together. Stir in diced peaches, lemon juice, sour cream, walnuts, and celery. Pour into oiled loaf pan (9 x 5 x 3 inches). Chill until firm. Unmold, garnish with salad greens and peach slices and serve with salad dressing or mayonnaise, if desired. Makes 18 servings.

Canned Spiced Peaches

Wash, rinse, drain, scald and peel firm-ripe peaches. Do not remove pit. Pack peaches to within ½-inch of top of jar. You will have no trouble removing peaches if new tapered jars are used. Cover peaches with boiling hot syrup. Put dome lid on jar; screw band tight. Process pints 25 minutes, 1½ pints 30 minutes in a boiling-water bath canner. The spiced syrup may be medium or heavy. From ¾ to 1 cup syrup will be needed for each pint.

To Make About 5½ Cups Medium Syrup: Use 3 cups sugar, 4 cups water, ½ teaspoon each whole cloves and whole all-spice, about ⅓ of a nutmeg (crack it with a hammer) and a couple of sticks of cinnamon. Tie the spices in a piece of cloth. Add to sugar and water. Let boil until sugar dissolves. Leave spice bag until syrup has pleasant flavor. Just before using syrup, remove bag and bring syrup to boil. You may if you like, omit the cinnamon from the syrup and put a piece or two in each jar.

Flower and Garden

What causes chrysanthemums to dry up from the bottom? The buds did not develop to blooming stage either, why? C.A., Michigan.

Wilting and browning of the leaves from the bottom of the plant up or stunted plants often failing to produce flowers, indicate a fungus disease called wilt. Since the fungus is both carried in the plant and soil borne, it is necessary to secure new stock from healthy plants and set them in a new location. There are varieties quite resistant to wilt and such varieties should be used as far as possible. Nothing can be done for diseased plants and they should be removed and destroyed at once.

I have a beautiful red leaf plum tree about 7 or 8 feet high which did not bear any plums this year; and now the leaves are falling off. What could be causing this? Mrs. C.V., Georgia.

Some plum trees do not set fruit even though they bloom. This infertility is remedied by planting another tree that blooms at the same time. The second plum tree will usually furnish pollen necessary to fertilize the sterile blooms. The purple leaf plum, Prunus pissardi, is a quite variable species and for the most part the fruit is of little value. Dropping the leaves is the result of a fungus on the leaves that causes them to be spotted and discolored. Rake up and destroy all dropped leaves and spray the tree with a fungicidal spray such as Fermate.

ANDREA J. ENTERPRISES

P. O. Box 5744, Dept. Z-8, Sherman Oaks, California

Is it possible to start Bougainvillea vines from cuttings and what is the proper care for this vine? Mrs. J.P., California.

Tip cutting of Bouganvillea may be rooted. Simply take tips five or six inches long and insert them in moist sand in a warm place. Keep them moist and away from drafts. Dipping the cuttings in a hormone powder will aid them to root. A glass or cellophane cover over the cuttings will help to keep off drafts and keep the humidity high around the cuttings.

What is wrong with my cannas? I separate the bulbs every year before I plant them. However, the blooms have kept dwindling until this year there were none at all. Mrs. C. H., New Jersey

Probably the canna roots are poor, run-out stock and should be replaced with new vigorous varieties from a specialist in growing this plant. Improper storage of the rhizomes, growing the plants in poor soil, inadequate water in summer, etc., all tend to cause plants to deteriorate or "run-out".

I have several rambler roses. Every year after blossom time, I find that something is eating the leaves from the bottom up, but I cannot find any insects. What can I do to prevent this? C. K., New York

Any insect that eats the rose foliage should be easily visible. Likewise, any leaf-eating insect will be destroyed if the foliage is kept covered with arsenate of lead. Spray the foliage using one heaping teaspoonful of arsenate of lead to a gallon of water. Repeat the spray after each rain so that the leaves carry as much arsenate of lead as possible.

Gardening questions are answered each month by C. L. Quear, one of the nation's leading gardening experts. Send questions on a post card — do not send samples of plants or leaves. Mr. Quear will answer questions only through the pages of The WORKBASKET; no questions will be answered through the mail. Oriental Poppies

Veronica M. Quist

Oriental poppies add a carnival of color to the garden.

Exotic oriental poppies (Papaver orientale) are wonderful for adding showy color to the garden in May and June. They are care-free perennials, easily grown and long lived. Glamorous 5 to 8-inch cupped flowers open on two or three foot, rough, hairy stems above large deeply cut foliage. They come in sparkling white and shades of orange, apricot, pink, salmon, rose and red, some beautifully marked.

Oriental poppies prefer well-drained soil in sunny locations. They may be planted in early autumn or spring, but the former is preferred as the plant is more likely to bloom the first summer. Having thick fleshy roots, poppies do best when left to grow undisturbed. Each year they increase in size, producing spectacular flowers in greater numbers.

Because plants remain for many years, it is well to dig soil deeply in preparaton for planting, working in organic matter and fertilizer. Set purchased plants out in late summer, about 3 inches below soil surface. Allow at least two feet between plants to provide room for growth.

Poppies

Plants die down after blooming and remain dormant for several weeks. If you wish more plants, dig clump at this time, divide into sections and replant. New plants may also be started from root cuttings. Cut pieces of long, straggly roots 3 or 4 inches long and place horizontally in moist sandy soil with thicker end about an inch below surface. Keep watered until active growth has started. These can be put in a cold frame and planted out the following spring. Many gardeners prefer setting them in permanent positions right away as they flower little, if at all, until second season after planting. You can also take root cuttings in early spring and plant in open ground. Mulching is advisable the first year.

It is possible to raise oriental poppies from seeds but they do not come true, predominance of seedlings being orange-red. Sow seeds in sandy soil in frames in April, or outside in May. Scatter in shallow drills and cover very lightly.

Poppies are effective in small groups among perennials in middle or toward back of border. Use in clumps against evergreens for dazzling spring color. Irises, lupins and baby's breath are fine companions, their foliage filling spaces left when poppies go dormant. Annuals can supply later color. Vivid orange poppies tend to clash with some flowers but are striking near white ones, and against a fence.

Seed capsules which remain after petals drop are covered with a shield-like cap under which seeds are dispersed through tiny spaces. They can be used in arrangements when brown, or sprayed with gold or colored paint.

Many delightful cultivars are available from nurserymen today. You may choose from soft pastels through a wide assortment of luscious colors to blazing red. Samples of interesting ones include Curlilocks with large, deep rose-pink laciniated flowers; Crimson Pompon, fully double red; Ridgewood Beauty, ruffled peach; and Carnival, ruffled white, broadly banded in orange-scarlet. Oriental poppies bloom abundantly and last indoors if stems are first seared.

Veronicas For Summer Coolness

Betty Brinhart

I have never known perennials with such beauty and versatility. Veronicas will grow well in almost any kind of garden soil, and are found throughout the temperate and frigid zones.

Because of their unique adaptability, all varieties of Veronicas, especially blue-flowering ones, can be put to work in any garden, in any way, to add coolness and brilliant color to their surroundings.

Veronicas are hardy, herbaceous and subshrubby plants that belong to the Figwort family. These are great sun lovers, so like it best in open beds. The more sunlight they receive, the more colorful their spikes will be.

These flowers have always been great favorites of my mother's. The more varieties she managed to squeeze into her small rock garden, and into narrow borders along the garden fence, the happier she was. She was especially fond of Veronicas because they performed so beautifully with so little attention.

All except wild forms, can be successfully grown from seed (wild varieties do not come true from seed), propagated from cuttings taken in spring, or multiplied by dividing established root systems in spring, or early fall.

These charming perennials come in many excellent varieties—some low-growing, others tall and erect. The low-growing, or dwarf varieties, are unexcelled for rock garden culture; along stone walls; in crevices of flagstone walks, or simply in clusters around the water lily pool.

On the other hand, taller varieties are perfect as border subjects, do well in open beds by themselves, or may be used in any manner desired to add interest to summer flower gardens.

Don't ever let it be said that versatility has been bred into Veronicas at the expense of flower spikes suitable for cutting. What would summer bouquets be like without several graceful blue spikes of Veronica? If you like to arrange mixed floral bouquets for your home in summer, be sure to include Blue Spire, Royal Blue, and Blue Peter in your selections as they make excellent cut flowers.

Rock Garden Varieties—Actually, there is no definite line of classification among the different types. Where and how the many kinds are used depends entirely upon your flower garden needs and, of course, upon your special likes and dislikes in plant height and growing habits. In other words, recommended rock garden varieties may be used as edging material for borders, while tall border plants may be used in rock garden if height is needed.

Veronica varieties for rock gardens come from all over the world. For instance, the delightful V. bonarota, which hails from the eastern Alp country, is one of the prettiest Veronicas for the small rock garden. It has a very charming way of draping its green foliage over rocks, and produces lovely blue flowers on short spikes in mid-summer.

V. armena, V. filifolia, V. fruticans, and V. incana are also outstanding rock garden subjects. If you really like miniature rock garden plants, try V. canescens, which is about the tiniest Veronica known. It is so small that it can hardly be noticed until it bursts into filmy clouds of soft lavender in July. It certainly makes a delightful ground cover or carpet for rock gardens, or may be used to soften harsh lines along walls, walks, or around flagstone.

Border Veronicas — There are dozens of superior varieties from which to choose for all border purposes. All are very colorful, and extremely easy to grow. The favorite in most American gardens is V. maritima which comes to us from Japan. Sometimes it is simply called V. longifolia subsessilis. It stands 2 feet tall, and produces beautiful, slightly arched spikes of blue-violet in late summer. It is one of the most outstanding varieties for summer borders, and does exceptionally well if fertilized.

All varieties of Veronicas can be propagated in several ways, but I prefer root division best. These seem to give flowers quicker with less work, and perform just as well as those grown from seed, or from rooted cuttings. Grow 2 or 3 new varieties each year to bewilder and charm your gardening friends.

A Tree In Your Kitchen

Diana Garey

Looking for something to brighten up a corner of your kitchen? Try growing your very own tree from seed! It's a lot easier than you'd think, and needn't cost a cent.

The next time you serve avocado to your family, (it's delicious in a salad, by the way) remember to save the pit. It's hard and brown, about size and shape of an egg; it hardly looks as if it were a seed at all. If you soak it in water for a week or two, the outer brown skin will flake off, and pit will be light-colored and wrinkled but still hard. It still won't look anything like a seed, but have faith!

Fill a good-sized flower pot with soil, the sandier the better, and bury the avocado pit just beneath the surface, leaving plenty of room between bottom of pit and drain. In a short time, this space will be filled with roots, although you won't be able to see them. Water it thoroughly every day. It may take as long as a month before anything happens, but suddenly one day a small green shoot will peek out from the soil and begin to grow.

Kitchen Tree

Once seed sprouts, it grows amazingly fast. Stem turns brown and woody, and leaves grow long and glossy. During early stage, the baby tree needs heavy daily watering and lots of light, but be careful not to scorch it in sunlight that is too direct and strong. In a very short time, your tree will be about a foot tall with leaves up to six inches long. It will slow down in growth, adding a new leaf or two at the top every few weeks. Then it will need much less water. It's a good idea to test soil with your finger to see if it is dry before adding more water. As tree continues to grow, it will still need light, but not direct sunshine.

Avocado trees seem to thrive indoors, near bright windows and away from sudden drafts or prolonged heat. Once they've reached a good sturdy size of two or three feet tall, they are very hardy little trees and will require relatively little care. The weather outdoors never seems to trouble them at all, they grow equally well summer or winter, so long as temperature indoors is fairly constant. What is more, they will continue to grow comfortably for years, without transplanting.

Although you may never get any "alligator pears" from your little kitchen tree, it will yield many hours of satisfaction as you watch it grow.

When false teeth get on your nerves many dentists give special FASTEETH powder. It helps hold teeth in place—helps keep them from slipping or dropping down when you talk—makes you feel more secure. FASTEETH cushions tender gums so you can bite harder and eat easier, faster with greater comfort. FASTEETH helps you laugh and speak more clearly without embarrassment. FASTEETH is alkaline (non-acid). Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). At drug counters everywhere.

3-D Pompon Poodle Pictures

Fido and Fifi are two as engaging personalities as you will hope to meet as they smirk at you from their frames. They are especially nice for childrens' or teen rooms. Each poodle is made of six yarn pompons.

To make Fido, cut a piece of cardboard 2 x 6½ inches; wind with 2-ply yarn. If heavier yarn is used, less turns around card will be needed for each pompon. Wrap yarn lengthwise around card.

Wind yarn around card 12 times and cut. Slip yarn off card and tie tightly in center with short length of yarn. Clip loops at both ends. Comb out strands until ends fuzz. Hold pompon tightly at center so whole strands will not be pulled out during combing. Make 3 more pompons. Two should be of a light color yarn for top whiskers—we used tan; the other two a contrasting color such as black or dark brown for ears. Tie the two dark ones together at center and two light ones together at center.

Make two more pompons, winding yarn around card 20 times. These pompons are for topknot and chin whiskers.

Choose a picture frame to suit your fancy. We prefer a narrow Arrange parts of poodle first on background before final assembly.

frame in about 9 x 12-inch size but this is optional. Remove the glass and cover cardboard with burlap or other desired cloth in a color you prefer.

Cut face from felt. Color should be one that will be highlighted by background you have chosen. Cut eyes from white felt, pupils and nose black, and tongue red.

Now you are ready to begin assembling. Glue face in place and glue on eyes. Arrange ear pompons and lay on topknot. Fasten by tacking with thread or glueing to background. Next arrange chin and top whiskers. Fasten in place. Glue tongue in place spreading glue only along top edge and tucking under upper whiskers. Tip of tongue should be free. Glue nose in place.

Fifi is assembled in same manner. The arrangement of her topknot and ears is a bit different. Her bangs are trimmed straight across so they are about on same level as her ears. She was made entirely of white yarn and wears a gay ribbon bow in hair.

The pups can be made in other sizes by varying length of card around which yarn is wound. They are cute, too, if they are both placed in same frame and pupils of eyes arranged so they seem to be "making eyes" at each other.

Bridal Shower Idea

Lillian Oliver

A shower of rice on the wedding day is said to bring good luck. Here's a way to be sure guests have rice to toss on that happy day.

Take cellophane paper and roll pieces into slender cone-like tubes, leaving tops open. Glue securely. Then fill with rice grains. Stick pipe cleaner half way into rice, bend at top to resemble umbrella handle. Tie a ribbon bow at top to contain rice inside. Attach card with suitable verse.

Use these favors at the bridal shower and instruct guests to bring them along on the wedding day.
